PATSY WALKER

The Artist

TONY'S summer was all set. Every morning he had a job in a grocery store that grossed him enough for swimming, tennis, and other dates with Ruth, the girl of his dreams. Tony was happily looking forward to the coming days of July and August.

Then came the proverbial fly in the ointment. He didn't suspect a thing until Ruth started making excuses and refusing dates.

Tony sat down behind the barrel of apples and decided to think the situation through. Ruth liked him, and he had to admit she still dated him four days of seven, which wasn't bad. But what did she do the other three days? He scratched his head. Something was cooking, and he had to find out what.

"Tony," Mr. Catl called from the front of the store. "Tony!"

"Yep, coming!" Tony emerged from behind the apples.

"Get busy and take these deliveries."

"Okay, okay." Tony loaded the packages into the little hand wagon and wheeled out of the store. He'd ask Ruth point-blank what was cooking. "Ruth," he'd say, "what happens to the three days out of seven? Where is your hiding place? Where do you and the gang go?"

He said the words over and over all day. And when he arrived at Ruth's that night, they spurted right out, "Ruth, what happens to the three days out of seven? Where is your hiding place?"

Ruth smiled back at him. "A perfectly wonderful thing has happened to me, Tony. It's the turning point of my life."

Tony looked worried. "Yeah? What's his name?"

"Oh, Tony, it isn't anything like that. It's my career that's involved."

"Humph, is that all?" Tony relaxed.

Ruth continued, "Bob's brother, Paul, is here for the summer. He's an artist, and he's taking all of us on field trips, and we—paint!"

Tony couldn't help laughing, mostly from relief. "You mean the gang goes out with butterfly nets and bee bonnets?"

"No!" Ruth looked hurt. "I said we paint. We aren't scientists. Paul is wonderful, and he said I have a great talent. You should see what I've painted on the trips. I did an old barn and some cows and . . ."

"Yeah, I know what you mean. My Aunt Bessie paints, too. Pa always says, if it weren't for Bessie, we could have some good pictures in our parlor."

"Tony! You see, that's why I didn't tell you." Tears came to her lovely blue eyes. "Now you know what happens to the three days out of seven—and just for what you've said, I'm going to make it four."

"Oh, Ruth, please! You know we have our dates all set up. What's going to happen to your tennis and your swimming if you paint every day?"

"You may go now. Tomorrow is another field day, and I need my rest. We're going to the old mill to paint."

"Okay, that's all right with me." Tony felt crushed as he banged out of the house. "Field days," he muttered, "Great talent, humph!" Then an idea came to him. If Ruth and the gang could paint, he could, too—and he'd do a better job than they did!

Tony slowed down before a men's clothing store. This was going to mean his week's salary, but it would be worth it. He bought a beret and a smock. Then he slid up to a shop that sold artists' materials. "Give me a can of paint, a palette, a folding stool . . . oh, give me the works!"

His wallet was flatter than the well-known pancake when he finished shopping, but Tony didn't care. Getting Ruth back would be worth it.

WILSON — THE STATIONERY MAN, DEPT. S-1480, TYRONE, PENNA.

Tony was a sight as he wheeled towards the old mill on the river the next day. His beret was slanted at a rakish angle, and the bright smock swirled behind him as he pedaled to the spot.

He spotted Ruth and the gang when he turned the last bend in the highway. All of them looked serious before their blank sheets of white paper. Paul, the artist, had the situation well in hand and was talking very authoritatively to the group.

Tony unloaded his materials from the bike and took his stand one hundred feet away from them. Every movie, every story he had ever read about artists came back to him. He looked very professional as he set up his easel. He cocked his beret and squinted past his pencil held at arm's length, stood back, and squinted again. From the corner of his eye he could see Ruth's face full of consternation and surprise.

Paul came towards him. "This is a private class, boy," he told Tony. "I'd appreciate it if you left immediately."

Tony sat on his folding chair and looked up at Paul. "I'd appreciate it if you and your crowd of amateurs left!" He swished his brush into the colors on his palette and slapped it on the paper.

Paul looked abashed as he moved away. "Pardon me, sir, I thought you were one of the teenagers of this town. Pardon."

"You're pardoned, but please don't disturb me any more." Tony continued to slap colors onto the paper. Without turning his head he saw Paul join the gang and all of them begin to paint. Ruth seemed nervous.

Tony painted, or rather put his brush into colors and slapped it on the paper until the sun went down. He was getting tired of it, and he was hungry. If a guy can choose what he wants to do for a living, he thought, I'll be a grocery clerk. He was sick of the old mill, sick of the paper full of colors, sick of the beret and smock. He almost wished he'd gone swimming. By now he would have felt refreshed and he'd be munching on sandwiches his mother had given him. What a life! he muttered—all because I want to show up Ruth and the gang.

He decided to give up. If Ruth wanted to be a painter, let her! He was going back to his old schedule—the grocery store mornings, swimming and tennis afternoons, and maybe he'd find another girl who wasn't so involved in a career.

He squinted at his painting. It looked terrible to him. But he squinted again—and it didn't look so bad. Perhaps he could take down one of Aunt Bessie's masterpieces and put this up. It wasn't bad at all. Just as he was pulling off his beret, Paul, the great artist, slid up.

"Do you mind if I look at your work?" he asked.

"Nope, look away." Tony bundled up the paints, palette, beret and smock and was just about to dump the whole thing into the river when he heard Paul's words, "This is a masterpiece! What color! What freedom! You're absolutely great!"

"Great? Color? What do you mean?" Tony swirled around and saw Ruth and the whole gang gazing rapturously at his picture.

"Tony," Ruth said sweetly, "why didn't you tell me? I never dreamed you could paint. Your color sense is positively wonderful! It's out of this world!"

Paul and the whole gang oh'd and ah'd over Tony's canvas. Paul stepped back as everyone waited breathlessly for his words, "Where did you learn about color, my boy? I've studied for many years, but I must say you have it all over me. This is really great!"

Tony sat down on his folding chair and doubled up with laughter. "Color! Did you say color? Artists, Ruth, gang, I have a confession to make. I didn't know what I was doing. I'm color-blind! I don't know one color from another. And another thing—you can have this masterpiece. I certainly don't want it!" Then he looked very sheepishly at Ruth. "Ruth, I'm not too color-blind to see you. You're every color in the rainbow for me."

Ruth smiled. "Tony, don't we have a movie date for tonight?"

"That we have. Will you ride my handle bars back to town?"

They quietly left the rest of the crowd, but before they reached the bike, Tony dumped all his art materials into the river—and Ruth didn't say a word!

Get Rid of UGLY PIMPLES this new easy way!

Amazing new medicated lotion developed by a doctor works wonders by clearing up complexion in one week or less!

DON'T let a bad complexion ruin romance, spoil your fun, cause you to be embarrassed, shy or ashamed. If you suffer from acne, the common external cause of pimples among young people, try this wonderfully effective medicated lotion that was developed by a practicing physician to clear up his own teen ager's complexion after other methods had failed. It has produced astonishing results for many thousands of others. It is GUARANTEED to help you or it won't cost you a single cent!

Doesn't Show On Your Face

Keraplex is a skin-colored lotion (NOT a greasy salve or ointment!) that is quickly absorbed by the skin and gets right down in the pores where its healing and antiseptic ingredients can go to work. After you have applied it, there is no trace left on the surface. In fact, it makes a perfect powder base for girls and a refreshing after shaving lotion for men... actually improves the tone of the skin! It is pleasant and easy to use—leaving your skin soft, clean and fragrant.

Boys and girls—if you have pimples on your shoulders or back, you can avoid embarrassment when they are exposed to view. For Keraplex keeps your shoulders, arms, back and chest wonderfully free from pimples—without soiling clothes, without messiness or greasiness!

Works in SIX Out of SEVEN Cases!

An analysis of RESULTS taken from actual case histories proves that Keraplex is successful in clearing up six of every seven cases of externally caused blackheads and pimples. It tones up the complexion generally, giving it a healthy, radiant glow.

Try This New Method Without Risking A Penny!

Keraplex is GUARANTEED to clear up your skin troubles or there will be NO COST to you whatsoever. If yours happens to be the ONE extra-stubborn case out of seven which Keraplex cannot help in one short week, it will cost you nothing to have tried it. Keraplex is sent to you with that simple, positive GUARANTEE!

SEND NO MONEY

You need send no money with the coupon below. When postman delivers your Keraplex lotion (in plain wrapper marked "Personal"), deposit with him only the modest price indicated below, plus a few cents postage.
